

FROM THE EARTH TO THE TABLE

The rich fertile soils of Chile produce agricultural products that buyers in the United States have become accustomed to finding in their local grocery store aisles. In 2006, Chilean produce ranked 8th in the top 15 U.S. importer markets. The Port of Mobile and Brookley International are ready to help you place your crops into the American markets with the most accessible and modern port facilities available. Freshness and appearance is what matters to the consumer, and it matters equally as much to us that your product be delivered to the market in its optimum condition.

